“This is an exceptionally valuable book. Through a genuinely international perspective, it moves forward the debate on how to meet the needs of young people making the transition from care to adulthood...This is a book that should be required reading not only for all those who have responsibilities for young people making the transition from care to adulthood, but also for everyone who has an interest in narrowing the gap between the most and the least disadvantaged young people.”

Harriet Ward, Loughborough University

Varda R. Mann-Feder is Professor of Applied Human Sciences at Concordia University and the founding Program Director for the Graduate Diploma in Youth Work. Dr. Mann-Feder is known for her research on aging out of care and her advocacy on behalf of youth in placement.

Martin Goyette is Professor at the National School of Public Administration (ENAP), Montreal, Quebec, Canada and a holder of the Canada Research Chair in Evaluating Public Actions Related to Young People and Vulnerable Populations (CREVAJ). His research interests are situated in the area of young people's transition to adulthood with a focus on care leavers, more specifically, exploring the dynamics of social inclusion/exclusion and social network analysis.
